Dear Mr. Pruitt,

I write today asking you to consider your priorities. We are experiencing 60 degree weather during what should be winter. Weather is the token small talk conversation piece, and all month long people have been expressing surprise, shock, and concern over the warmth. As leader and spokesperson for the Environmental Protection Agency I expect you to advocate for what those words mean. If it is your opinion that the EPA does not function with efficiency to accomplish the goals of protecting the natural world, please take action to aid it in functioning better. Please do not let the greed of corporations compromise the future of sustainable life on this planet. It will survive, we may not.

Thank you for listening to your people. Sincerely,
Tavius Koktavy
